THE EDITOR'S CHAIR.

HOW THINGS LOOK FROM OUR STAND POINT.

The Opinion of The Editor and the Opinion of Others which we Can Endorse on the Various Topics of the Day.

The great Fife meeting—what a glorious occasion for Clinton and the whole surrounding country! This town and county has never seen anything like it. We doubt if such a meeting has ever before been seen in the State. It closed Monday night but its effects will be seen and felt here for a generation and we trust forever. Mr. Fife came here with the great majority antagonistic and prejudiced against him, many others were indifferent, having little or no confidence in him, some of our best citizens declared that they would not hear him, even the ministers of the town were divided as to the wisdom and propriety of the meeting and the most sanguine trembled for the results. The Christian tone of the community was below par, and then this was the home of Mr. Fife during his worst days, the scene of action where he most successfully held high carnival for the Devil and his angels. Under such insuperable circumstances in the face of apparently insurmountable obstacles he came. To day not a half dozen can be found to repeat the objections and criticisms of a week ago. The opposition melted down, the obdurate of doubt were brushed away and at least 500 souls were reclaimed and converted. He captured the town and no where in North Carolina has he warmer friends and truer Christian admirers. This old town is as dead as the old Bill Fife. The transformation is wonderful. You ask how it was done, what is the secret of his power? Once again it is the man's history, but that would fail to do more than attract out of curiosity and not convert. It is his personal magnetism, his day of sin, and his power over men here that was infinitesimal compared to what it is now; another says it is his enthusiasm and earnestness, these are powerful qualities in any man, but we have seen men of more learning and ability with equal enthusiasm and earnestness who could not have stirred this cold, gossiping, covetous, liquor-drinking and wicked town. What then is it? We can see but one possible answer. The Holy Spirit was with him abundantly and did use him mightily. He used plain and simple language, but with it did terrible blows to sin in every form. In his holy mission he spared no person and no vice, and though his words often seemed hard yet they came with such earnest pleading and soul stirring exhortations that proud hearts were melted that were wont to bristle with resentment. One of the most glorious results of the meeting is the breaking of animosities and feelings of hatred and revenge. Many who have not spoken for years have made friends, or rather they met and realized that they no longer are enemies. The amount of good done cannot be estimated as the days go by we are convinced that the work done will be permanent.

First, when the demands of the Farmers' Alliance were presented to the world, the opposition thought to ignore them and thereby prevent them from becoming issues. They treated them with perfect silence. This plan was wise; they were following the instructions of Gamaliel; but unfortunately for them the cause contained true merit, and like the one Gamaliel condemned it grew in spite of their silence and contempt. Their next move was to ridicule and deride it, and condemn it on account of the source from which it emanated. They did not do actually say "can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" But what they did say amounted to exactly that sentiment. Still it grew amazingly, and they found that whether they kept silent or fought, it continued to grow more and more rapidly. Then they realized what every body now admits, that the only way to prevent the early supremacy and enforcement of the Alliance demands is to produce discord and dissensions within the ranks of the Order—National Economic.

We have called attention to this point in recent editorials. Let us stand square and firm for our demands. We cannot afford to have dissensions. Our fight is for principles not over men. Let us not be duped and side tracked by the enemy.

It seems that the colored Alliance is not following Humphrey in his foolish order to pick no cotton for less than 10¢ per hundred, but rather are governed by Alliance principles and are following the wise and just course, and predicted they would in fact. And the members of the white Alliance can learn a lesson from this. Let none of us beside track by trying short cuts or doubtful means of expediency. Let us keep our eyes upon the great principle of the left hand march with courage and determination on to a victory that means protection to the weak and poor as well as to the rich and strong that means equal justice to every citizen and every business, that means honest reward for honest labor that means the preservation of a republican form of government.

The Alliance has done more to give positions of trust and honor to young men than any other organization. It recognizes honesty, integrity, high moral character and genuine worth, and bestows honors on whom they are due. On the other hand it will bury forever the tricky politician and traitor. Those who expect the support of the Alliance should recognize the cause in which it is engaged.

THE NEW SOUTH'S COSTLY LESSON.

The new South is returning to the better side of the old South. The cause for money is wearing away. The good sense of good principle is resuming its hold upon the people. In the wreck of companies and the disclosure of methods it is evident that the foundation of wealth is productivity and labor. Those dark-alley shortcuts for one that end in fortune and high rollers who a little while ago revealed "in glory and were going to revolutionize the world. The men who survive are the slow coaches who stuck to their integrity and were satisfied with gains less sudden and glittering.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HILL THE CHOICE.

In the late Democratic Convention in New York the New York World polled the vote of their choice for the next President with the following result. The vote stood:

WE ARE THE PEOPLE.

The thirty Democratic Governors of the Union are invited to meet Governor Campbell at Columbus, Ohio, on the 10th of October. The States that have Republican Governors are Maine, New Hampshire (elect), Vermont, Rhode Island (minority candidate), Connecticut (fraudulent) Illinois, Nebraska, Nebraska (hold over), elected by the people, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington, California and Nevada (pocket-borough).—Yad. Valley News.

My wife has used Bradys' Eye Salve for headache with the best imaginable results. I state this without solicitation or reward. J. W. MARRIOTT, Abbeville, Georgia.

CO-EDUCATION.

Mark the prediction! Within five years the door of every college in North Carolina which desires to prosper in its work will be open to girls on the same terms as to boys. It doesn't matter what may be our view as to co-education, the demand for this system of education is growing and the University will not be able to resist it much longer.—North Carolina Times.

LOYALTY TO THE ORDER.

President Marion Butler of the State Alliance, as true a member of the Order as can be found in the State, this winter knew him and worked with him during the last Legislature and knows that he is true to the Alliance in every respect. No one can doubt Marion Butler's loyalty to the Order.—Roanoke News.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, proved that it was a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, at 75 cents.

A FINE SHOWING.

North Carolina's Commissioner of Agriculture states that there will be twenty-one fair fields in the State this year. His statement makes a fine showing for cotton factories. There were just after the war sixty mills in the State. In 1890 they had increased to 116, and in this year there are 134 cotton mills in operation in North Carolina.—Balt. Sun.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve. The best Salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetters, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by Dr. R. H. HOLLIDAY, Clinton, and J. R. SMITH, Druggist, Mount Olive, N. C.

A Wonder Worker.

Mr. Frank Huffman, a young man of Barton, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption and he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued to use it and is to-day enjoying good health. If you have any Throat, Lung or Chest Trouble try it. We guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free at R. H. Holliday's drugstore, Clinton, and John R. Smith, druggist, Mt. Olive, N. C.

ANNE BISSELL.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. Tells how young Dr. Tibbels takes up his abode in Mrs. Bissell's village boarding house, where pretty Anne, a high school graduate, is an interesting figure. Miss Carver, an older boarder, indulges in some opinions about the newcomer and Anne.

CHAPTER II.—Dr. Tibbels unites himself very popular in the household, a fact noted and noted down, too, by Miss Carver.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Carver and Widow Harkaway, a gossiping village, discuss the doctor and Anne, and feel in duty bound to tell the young girl that the new boarder is already engaged.

CHAPTER IV.—Granter Bissell was again pottering about the garden, and the doctor and Anne were trying over a new song in the parlor, where Anne had put down her dusting brush to play the accompaniment. Neither of them minded the broken key nor the horrible dissonance it made when they got into the full musical flow. Presently Mrs. Bissell came down from the attic chamber where the old man slept, and clung to the balustrade to steady herself and keep from falling, and tottered into the little parlor as pale as ashes. The doctor turned round and caught her by the arm just in time to save her from falling. He put her gently on the sofa.

"What is the matter, Mrs. Bissell?" he asked; "are you ill?"

Anne rushed to her mother's side, and put her arm under her head. "It isn't a faint or anything that I have eaten that has disagreed. Anne, my child, I've been robbed of my interest money, all my hard earnings and savings of a year, to meet the payment on the mortgage."

"What did I tell you, Miss Bissell?" she continued, "I thought I would tell the neighbors, who were ready to hoot him out of town. Bridget's sister, it appeared, was a highly respectable person, and had also a power of tongue that seemed to blow the words of the doctor like a hot wind from the furnace of hell."

The doctor came early in the evening from Appledale, rather dampened by the result of his expedition. He had found an officer, and had succeeded in searching Bridget's sister's house, but without avail. The act had brought a dose of indignation on the part of the doctor, and he was ready to hoot him out of town. ing my big bills in that way for a good many years, and it shows how careful I've been about money that to my knowledge I never lost a penny before in all my housekeeping.

"I think that mark on the bills is an excellent clue," said the doctor, "I know a young detective in the city who can work up the case. I will set him on it if you say so. There isn't anything of the kind those fellows cannot ferret out if you give them time. Of course the money wasn't passed here, and you will have to look for it in Boston."

"Bridget went over to Appledale last Sunday," said Mrs. Bissell, after musing, "to see her married sister who lives there, and she has been in a very bad temper ever since."

"I tell you what," said the doctor, suddenly inspired; "we will get out a search warrant for Bridget and her sister. You watch Bridget here at home, and I will run over to Appledale and have her sister's house searched. We may find the money all there in a lump. If nothing comes of it we can go through Bridget's things here when I come back, before she gets wind of what has happened."

Mrs. Bissell and Anne were deeply grateful to the doctor for his active interest.
